

I Am Special Too!

Objective: to find that differences can make us special

Farmer Ted and his son were walking around the farm one day.

Moozie walked over to the fence and moo-ed to them.

The little boy was happy to see Moozie because he knew she was kind to everyone and everything.

"Look Dad, at Moozie's special markings on her head and back. Her markings remind me to be kind".

Farmer Ted said, "Moozie is a special cow because of her kindness, but all cows are special to me".

The boys asked, "Why?"

Farmer Ted called more cows to the fence.

The boy could see markings on the cows and tried to find shapes and designs in their markings, too.

One cow had a marking that looked like the pond on the farm.

Another cow had lots of spots all over her, while another had a white nose.

Then he saw a cow with spots that looked like socks on her legs.

The little boy liked playing the markings game.

Farmer Ted greeted and touched each cow as she came to the fence.

"All the cows are special to me and each one is different, too.

I can tell them apart by their markings and sometimes their actions.

Moozie is the kindest cow on the farm, but each cow is special in its own way".

The cows moo-ed, then returned to the pasture.

The little boy said, "I had a great time looking at ALL the special cows, especially Moozie!"

You are special and so are ALL your friends!
