

The Goatherd and the Goat

A Goat strayed away from the flock, tempted by a patch of clover. The Goatherd tried to call it back, but in vain. It would not obey him. Then he picked up a stone and threw it, breaking the Goat's horn.

The Goatherd was frightened.

"Do not tell the master," he begged the Goat.

"No," said the Goat, "that broken horn can speak for itself!"

Wicked deeds will not stay hid.

Moozie advises "Always be kind and hope that others might notice and copy your example. Doing bad or evil things will always get noticed and publicized since everyone these days has a camera and social media at their fingertips."